

RECOGNIZES CHINESE SCIENCE LEADERSHIP*Rockefeller Board Aids Two Schools Ruled by Natives.

That the Chinese are beginning to assume responsible leadership in teaching modern science and its application to medical education is indicated in the annual report of the China Medical Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, which has just been made public.

dent with the announcement that the board has given $125,000 each to Southeastern University at Nanking and Nankai College at Tientsin for science buildings and equipment. Southeastern University is a Government institution; Nankai a private institution, receiving provincial aid. Both are considered examples of what the Chinese are doing in education with their own financing and their teaching and management entirely in the hands of Chinese. The gifts just announced are the first which the China Medical Board has made for pre-medical teaching to institutions under Chinese auspices.
